Any excuse is a good excuse to visit Jerusalem, right? Especially if you're planning to spend a quiet weekend at the pastoral Hotel Yehuda in Givat Massuah. Just a short drive from the Israeli museum and the Biblical Zoo, this laid back and classic hotel is absolutely charming. The interior design is elegant, and gives the feeling of an exclusive private residence. Warning: once you're over the doorstep, you will have a hard time leaving.

Why go: You will have no trouble kicking back and enjoying yourself in this beautiful boutique hotel. Whether you're a couple looking for a getaway, a family in search of a unique vacation or a group of friends looking to let loose in style; there is a room perfectly suited to make your stay an absolute treat.

Best For: People who are sick of Tel Aviv. This is a good choice for an easy getaway from the city that never sleeps.

Eating and drinking: The dining room serves a three-course dinner (buffet) with satisfying dishes. The dining room has a lovely view on the garden and a restful atmosphere. But if you really want to take it to the next level, take your coffee (or later with an end of the day cocktail) and go spend some relaxing time in the pool area.

What to do: Whatever you're in Jerusalem for – a romantic weekend, a week of sightseeing or a work function, Jerusalem's magic is well worth exploring. My partner and I enjoyed the magnificent sights of the city, while visiting iconic place like the Mahane Yehuda market and of course, the Western Wall.

Close to: Malha Mall, the Knesset, The Israeli Museum, Yad Vashem, The Biblical Zoo and so on. Between us guys, nothing is far away in Israel. So, go take a walk, or a short drive.

Dress Code: Relaxed. Dinner guests make an effort.

What else?

What's hot?

The sensational service.

The garden and the pool area.

What's not?

The lifts are a little tired.
